Published by the City of Knoxville's Office of Neighborhoods to report news important to Knoxville's residential neighborhoods. Deadline for news & calendar items: 5 p.m. Mondays.

1. Five Points Up Plans East Knoxville Community-Wide Clean-up

Five Points Up --- a community organization based in the Five Points area of East Knoxville -- is hosting an East Knoxville Community-Wide Clean-up from 9 a.m. until noon this coming Saturday, March 21.

Area residents --- and any other city residents and community groups who wish to join in --- are asked to meet in the parking lot of Harvest Center Plaza, 2410 Martin Luther King Jr. Avenue. Volunteers will then disperse into their own particular neighborhoods to pick up litter. Snacks, beverages, clean-up tools, gloves and supplies will be provided at no cost.

The partners for this event include CAC-East Neighborhood Center, Project Grad, City of Knoxville, East Knoxville Business and Professional Association, Keep Knoxville Beautiful, CAC AmeriCorps, Knoxville Police Department, Knoxville Fire Department, Waste Connections and others. The Knox County Health Department provides staff support to Five Points Up.

Active participants are expected to include members of the Parkridge Community Organization, Cold Springs Neighborhood Watch, Eastport/Lee Williams Neighborhood Watch, and others.

Contact CAC East Neighborhood Center (546-5125) for more information.

2. City Drafts 5-Year Plan, Schedules Meeting, Seeks Comment

The City of Knoxville has published the final draft of its Consolidated Plan and Annual Action Plan for spending federal dollars from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

A public meeting on the plan will be held at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 7, at the John T. O'Connor Center, 611 Winona Street. In addition to making comments at this meeting, citizens may submit their comments via e-mail to Linda Rust at lrust@cityofknoxville.org or in writing by mail or fax to Linda Rust, City of Knoxville, Community Development Department, P.O. Box 1631, Knoxville, TN 37901, fax 865-215-2962. All comments are due no later than Thursday, April 16.

The plan is available online in two separate documents:

Annual Action Plan Final Draft

http://www.cityofknoxville.org/development/currentdocs/2015-16_aaplanfinal.pdf

Consolidated Plan Final Draft

<http://www.cityofknoxville.org/development/currentdocs/5YearConPlan-2015-2019.pdf>

Hard copies of the plan are available for review at the Department of Community Development, 5th floor, City-County Bldg., 400 Main Street; the Lawson-McGhee branch of the Knox County Public Library; and the main office of the Knoxville-Knox County Community Action Committee. Citizens may also obtain a copy of the draft plan by calling the Community Development Department at 865-215-2120.

The five year Consolidated Plan outlines Knoxville's needs, priorities, and strategies for homeless assistance, affordable housing, and non-housing community development for program years 2015-2019. Another component of the Plan is the 2015-2016 Annual Action Plan, which describes the proposed use of Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), HOME Investment Partnership (HOME), and Emergency Solutions Grant (ESG) funds for the first year of the Plan, beginning July 1, 2015.

The final version of the plan is due to HUD on or before May 15, 2015.

The O'Connor Center is wheelchair accessible. Persons who wish to request disability-related accommodations including sign-language interpreters should contact Stephanie Cook, City of Knoxville ADA Coordinator at 865-215-2120 or scook@cityofknoxville.org. Please request accommodations at least ten days in advance.

Community Development is committed to meeting the needs of non-English speaking residents, including foreign language interpreters and materials translated in the appropriate language. Please request accommodations at least ten days in advance.

3. KAT Director to Discuss Urban Design Book

Can redesigning spaces and transforming cities help people be happier?

Dawn Distler, director of Knoxville Area Transit (KAT), will discuss that question as she reviews the book "Happy City: Transforming Our Lives Through Urban Design" by Charles Montgomery at 12:00 p.m. Wednesday, March 18, in the East Tennessee History Center auditorium.

The discussion is part of the Knox County Public Library's monthly "Books Sandwiched In" book review series. Guests are welcome to bring their lunch and join the dialogue.

"It isn't parking spaces that lure people to the city," Distler said recently. "A cafe across the street from a bench under a tree, an open lane to ride a bike where cars will not push them out of the way, and a trolley to get them from the market to home make quality of life a reality and bring people to the heart of a 'Happy City.'"

See this article for more information.

4. Knoxville Hosts Tennessee Bike Summit in April

Knoxville is hosting the Tennessee Bike Summit on Thursday and Friday, April 23 and 24.

The conference is a gathering of advocates, engineers, planners, public health officials, researchers, retailers, and elected officials. The event is a chance to discuss how to build safe roads, strong communities, and a Tennessee where everyone is able to enjoy the benefits of bicycling and walking.

Topics include: New Practices in Bicycle Facility Design, Interim Solutions & Tactical Urbanism, Planning and Building Great Trails, Safe Routes to School, Empowering People to Take Action, Encouraging and Engaging Youth and Nontraditional Populations, Funding Opportunities for Projects, and Economic Benefits of Bicycle Facilities and Bicycling. The keynote speakers are Gil Penalosa and Martha Roskowski.

Also included: bike rides, mobile workshops, and social events. Early bird registration is $75. For more, visit <http://www.tnbikesummit.org/>.

5. Young People, Youth Groups Raise Profile at Neighborhood Conference

The Neighborhood Conference held at the Knoxville Convention Center on Saturday, March 7, drew more than 700 individuals who participated as representatives of city and county neighborhood organizations, interested citizens, speakers, moderators, exhibitors, volunteers, elected officials, and city and county government staff members.

Among those 700+ participants were approximately 100 middle and high school age youth who helped begin the conversation about the ways in which young people view their neighborhoods and how they might contribute to positive neighborhood activities.

Several of the 32 workshops at the conference focused on young people and/or schools. In the Healthy Avenues workshop, two local community activists --- Maurice Clark and Kwabena Miller --- delivered inspiring messages about their early lives, the poor choices they made, and how they turned their lives around to become not only productive members of society but also advocates of healthy choices for young people today.

The Knox Rox workshop showcased young talent, including dance by Divine Urban eXpressions, singing by LaNyah Outsey, and spoken word poetry performed by Helen Lillard. Other art forms were on display during the conference, including artwork by undocumented youth in the Jovenes Sin Nombres (Youths Without Names) project, and a Smoky Mountain Youth Media video of a Vine Middle School history project sponsored by Knox KnowHow.

In addition, Northwest Middle School student Brooklynn Johnson delivered an inspiring rendition of the National Anthem, and Hardin Valley Academy Senior Elizabeth Willien was on hand to accept the prize for her winning art featured on the conference tee shirt. Mount Olive Music Academy provided music for lunch. Young West African drummers, led by Obayana Ajanaku, provided a rousing end to the luncheon.

Young Voices featured a panel of young Knoxvilleians who candidly discussed the good and the bad that they see in their community and in their own neighborhoods. Panelists Dijon Andrews, Tyriq Cox, Helen Lillard and Anna Burkhart led a very mature and informed discussion on where they see themselves in the Knoxville community and on what they believe could be changed for the better in the city and surrounding areas.

Other youth oriented workshops included Community Schools and a question-and-answer session with the Knox County Board of Education.

Youth service and youth support organizations hosted 17 of the 79 information booths at the conference. They were 100 Black Men of Knoxville, AYSO, Big Brothers Big Sisters, Boys and Girls Club, Camelot, Free Will Baptist Family Ministries, Great Schools Partnership, The Joy of Music School, KPD Anti-Bullying Campaign, Knoxville Inner City Kids, KnowHow, K-Town Youth Empowerment Network, Our Daily Bread of Tennessee, Project Grad, Sundress Academy for the Arts, Workforce Connections, and YMCA.

6. Love Towers Resident Named Good Neighbor of the Year

Rita Schwartz, a retired social worker and 10-year resident of Love Towers, was named the Good Neighbor of the Year at the March 7 Neighborhood Conference.

Mayor Madeline Rogero honored all 14 nominees for the Diana Conn Good Neighbor of the Year Award and then announced that the Neighborhood Advisory Council had selected Ms. Schwartz to receive the award.

To draw residents out of their apartments and their isolation, Ms. Schwartz established an exercise program called "Love Morning Exercise" that promotes good health and social interaction. Through this program, she encouraged one resident of Love Towers to such an extent that the resident no longer uses a walker.

"Rita Schwartz has an uncanny ability to steer people outside of their comfort zone and encourage them to try new things," according to Steve Ellis, the person who nominated her. "She helps residents realize they are not just a community but also a family."

The award, named for the late Diana Conn of the Old Sevier Community, is presented annually to a Knoxville resident who --- in a spirit of cooperation and with commitment to inclusive community --- has devoted time and talent in service to his or her neighbors and neighborhood.

The other nominees also illustrated this spirit in numerous ways: mowing lawns, arranging for GED classes, organizing beautification and cleanup events, opening their homes for holiday celebrations, organizing youth activities, supporting local schools, organizing and leading a neighborhood organization, welcoming new neighbors, visiting those who are ill or grieving, helping elderly neighbors, and generally creating a sense of caring community.

In addition to Ms. Schwartz, the nominees were Ben & Heather Ream (South Knoxville), Beth Booker (Old North Knoxville), George Conner (Adell Ree Park Condominiums), Kirk Anderson (Timbercrest), Linda Denton (North Hills), Monte Stanley (Old Sevier), Nancy Wallace (West View), Ronnie Thompson (Montgomery Village), Sandy Robinson (Wesley Neighbors / West Hills), Sylvia Cook (Eastport / Lee Williams / Five Points), Tanisha Fitzgerald Baker (Pleasant Knoll), and Tonja Warren (Montgomery Village).

Congratulations to all of these good neighbors!

7. Conference Sponsors Provided Key Support

Fourteen companies provided key financial support that made The Neighborhood Conference a reality on Saturday, March 7, at the Knoxville Convention Center.

The platinum sponsors were Waste Connections, which holds the City of Knoxville contracts for pickup of household garbage and recyclables in the city, and Knoxville-based Home Federal Bank.

Tennova Healthcare --- the healthcare services provider --- was a gold sponsor.

Silver sponsors were Cannon & Cannon Consulting Engineers, the realty company Coldwell Banker Wallace & Wallace, the Knoxville Area Association of Realtors, Knoxville News Sentinel, Prestige Cleaners, UT Federal Credit Union, and the engineering firm Vaughn & Melton.

Bronze sponsors were First Tennessee Bank; local real estate firm Knox REIA; and Smart Home Technologies, a provider of home security services. Weigel's also provided support.

The Office of Neighborhoods appreciates the investment these companies have made in our community as well as the Neighborhood Conference. Please visit their web sites and thank them when you do business with them.

8. Volunteers Made the Conference a Success

A conference with more than 700 participants can operate smoothly and without major problems only if many dedicated hands are involved.

Over 300 people played a role in making the March 7 Neighborhood Conference a success.

The Office of Neighborhoods is deeply grateful to the 120+ individuals who served as speakers and moderators for the 32 workshops. They spent many hours meeting together, planning presentations, preparing hand-outs and working to make sure that attendees got what they came for. Their names can be viewed in the conference program.

We also wish to thank the city and county department heads and managers who participated, along with elected leaders, including Mayors Madeline Rogero and Tim Burchett and members of Knoxville City Council, Knox County Commission, and the Knox County Board of Education.

In addition, more than 100 individuals donated their valuable time to help with preconference activities --- such as program planning and assembling notebooks and name tags --- and to serve on conference day as greeters, registrars, ticket takers, workshop hosts and other support staff.

At the real risk of leaving someone out, they were Debbie Allen, Fonda Allen, Robbie Arrington, J. Tomma Battle, Micah-Sage Bolden, Regis Ann Borsari, Sarah Bounse, David Brace, Aaron Browning, Liliana Burbano, Andrew Calderaro, Arretta Castle, Jackie Clay, Nick Combs, Anna Compton, Stephanie Cook, Michael Covington, Jenn Christian, Nikki Crutcher, Carson Dailey ,

9. Knoxville Organizations Provide Key Donations

The Neighborhood Conference ended with a drawing for some great door prizes donated by the following businesses and nonprofit organizations:

Big Fatty's, Fox & Fogarty Real Estate, Ijams Nature Center, James White's Fort, Knoxville Children's Theater, Knoxville Neurology Clinic, Knoxville Symphony Orchestra, Knoxville Zoo, Mabry Hazen House, Magpies Bakery, Mango's Décor & Co., Mast General Store , Old North Knoxville, Inc., Regal Cinema, Rita's Italian Ice, Three Rivers Market, Time Warp Tea Room, and YMCA.

The Knoxville Parks & Recreation, Solid Waste, and Stormwater Engineering departments also donated prizes.

The Office of Neighborhoods appreciates the support of these organizations. Please thank them if you get the chance.
